1. [REDACTED] telephoned to say good-by. He is going to work for Paul Nitze and Bill Bundy in the Department of Defense.

2. I called Jim Garrison to see where we stood on our space study and concluded that, with the exception of the space utilization aspect of the study, not much progress was being made. I emphasized to Jim the necessity of getting at this promptly so that we can settle the priorities at a fairly early date.

3. With Jim Garrison and [REDACTED] I visited [REDACTED] where construction was still about 5 per cent ahead of schedule. It was difficult for me to tell whether they will finish on schedule, but Mr. MacKenzie (the Public Buildings Service superintendent on the job), the [REDACTED] representatives on the job, and [REDACTED] all are confident that, barring a major unforeseen emergency, we will be in good shape.
